MY SHOCKING MISADVENTURE

From London Society

in upon my hands and my feet upon of my grate, till the entrance of the o waited on me interrupted my medi Ob, sir, ahem! Beg pardon, sir," he no were not at the half to day, sir, and sent word to sak whether you would had a fiw. days before gone down to London (ever) place is "down" from "the university." It is style of writing was not elegant, and somewhat Isconic It ran thus "Dgan Ken. Coach 2 valuable pupa? If so, 10 min interview with me at Melford Station to morrow morning Yours, Dill..."

This was unexpected and certainly perplexing. On reterring to my Bradshaw, I found that Melford was a roadside station, at whe the few trains atopped, and It I was to meet Dill (or rather Dilling worth) there in the morning, I must leave by the half past eight omnibus. Now, morning chapel would be at that very time; it was at seven during term. "Should I apply for 'an exeat?" No, my college tutor was ill, and the Dean not to be faced again that day, so I resolved to risk it, my quavier's supply of esh being at a very low etb, Dill's bate was temping; and I saw that I could be back in time or tail by the train

Meiford Hill, he said, was only two miles out, and he would take me there if I wished We went. Everything proved satisfactory, and then, as I was axions to return by the two o'clock train, Dili and I, after an early luncheon set out together for the station, declining the offer of a carriage that we might enjoy a longer chat. After having proceeded leinnely for rather more than a mile, my friend wished me good by, and returned towards Meiford. Looking at my watch quickening my steps, I trudged on briskly. A furn in the road brought the station in sight, and looking in the direction from which the train, now due, might be expected, it saw a distant patch of white smoke or steam. Hastening forward, i strode up the sairs, two at a time, that led to the station, and beheld the train giding in thowards the opposite side. Jumping down upon the line I was abon to cross, when a voice owarde, me not to pass before the engine, accordingly going round the back of the train, I monuted the other plajform, and, placing my leaps in a few moments, and I felt my legs fail me as my feet came volently in contact with the ground everytime. I feared to let go, but could not keep pas a such a pace; so clinging for just a moment longer, I swung myself beneath the buffer, and then let go. I was rolled over and then let go. I was rolled over and buffer, and then let go. I was rolled over and buffer, and then let go. I was rolled over and buffer, and then let go. I was rolled over and buffer, and then let go. I was rolled over and buffer, and then let go. I was rolled over and buffer, and then let go. I was rolled over and buffer and then let go. I was rolled over and buffer and then let go. I was rolled over and buffer and then let go. I was rolled over and buffer over a sleeper. Upon this I perceived that I had been tollowing loader, recalled me to some sence of my position of seeking the station, but my brain was all in confusion. The hue and cry, however, becoming louder, recalled me to some sence of my position 1 hree or four railway me by this time nad c. me up, and one of them collared me roughly. "Come back, you, sir," said the man, "no running away, you're just been and made an baccident of yourself as near as ever you could—won't be give it to you?" With this I was hastled sach to the stailon and confronted with the ancry station master, pen and paper in hand. "What's your name this moment, are "demanded he may your name this moment, are "demanded he may pown to make the moment of the adjoining waspourned to company's bye laws; I have a summons all ready to issue against you, and you are to be punished for you willful and malicious attempt to—to," and bir for I could possibly reply to this vague charge, be departhed three of my captors to the gates to preven they grees still should comply with all his demands. ever made. One prominent fact which sustains us in this assertion is the remarkable success the 'Peerless' has had since its introduction to the public three years ago. The sale has already reached years ago. The sale has already reached many thousand Stoves, and we have been obliged to enlarge our Foundry in order to keep pace with our orders.

By a new and patented method of introducing hot air into the oven, the following VALUABLE RESULTS are obtained: 1st An EQUAL TEMPERATURE in all parts of the oven, so that no arti-cle, while baking or roasting, requires to be changed or turned. 2d. AGREAT SAVING in amount of FUEL required in Baking 3d Complete ventilation of the Oven, a current of heated air constantly passing

- 4th A new method of conveying air upon the fire, consuming the gases, and making a gas burner of practical utility 5th. Meats are roasted in the oven as oth. Meats are roasted in the oven as perfectly as in a tin kitchen before an open fire. This result we obtained by the current of heated air continually passing through the oven. We have a new arrangement of Roasting spit, which works admirably, and must be seen in order to be fully appreciated. Meats in other ovens are baked, in the 'Permiss' they are roasted.

Ryan had been keeping company with Miss Cushing for a year or two, but during the past year had kept his distance from her fer reasons best known to himself. On Saturday last a brother of Miss Cushing came to Pouroleum Centre and purchased a revolver which he took home with him, and placed it in his trunk in his room at the toil gate at the end of the bridge over Oil C eek at Kynd Farm, where he was employed to collect toil. Yesterday morning he secured the services of a friend to tend the bridge for him, and left the farm. During the day Miss Cushing called at the toil gate and asked to go to her horther's room, which request was granted her with some reluctance by the tem porary gate keeper, and she estered the apart ment. After stating bespurchased an interest in the Buffate Express o'clock, and which caused considerable excite; shat the prices of coal for the month of August and is about to become its ceitor. The Express announces that he will assume his new position on Saturday next. The readers of the Esprea and the citizens of Buffalo will be highly farered by such a connection, and the Buffalo Republi cans extend a cordial welcome to him. The brated humorist connected with the press in Virginia, Newdakerikov, during the scight of the first siver excitement. From the rough field he traveled to the Pacific coast, and was engaged, at different times on the Sacramento C mon the Sin Francis co Morning Call and the Alta Californian. For one of these papers he made a reportorial vorget to the Sandwich Islands, and wrute up that country with reference to the sugar culture. By the Alta if we remember right, he was engaged to make a journey round the world, and be had arranged to sail for Japan when circumstances intervened which suddenly changed his course, and induced him to Jim the Quiker City excursion party to Evrope and the East, in 1857. His letters to the Alta as well as his lectures, delivered has wintry, were fresh and original transcripts of the impressions made on his mind by old old world seems. His loumerable read ris will be giad to learn that he has given permanenforms to these in a book, Jist published by a Hartford firm, which bears the taking title of "The Lunescuts Abroad ora.
